A moment to stand up for the unsung heroes – our children

The pandemic crisis has been tough for us.
But maybe tougher for the child. And yet, every day they wake up with a smile and give us a reason to smile too.

WHEN ALL THIS IS OVER, when our children get back to their classrooms, life gets back to normal. Or should it?

Can we create a new ‘normal’ to welcome them back?

A normal where every child experiences joy in learning and is not caught in the vicious cycle of rote learning-test-marks.

A normal where every child works on purposeful projects like investigating 5 ways to save water at home and not just writing the definition of water cycle 5 times.

A normal where every child is exploring and is learning how to learn rather than pursuing the mirage of 100/100 in every subject.

A normal where every child's developmental needs decide what they learn NOW and not the job/college of a distant future.

A normal where every child has a safe space to freely express the incredible thinking that goes on in their minds.

And in that new ‘normal’
let every child's extraordinary
Human Potential
be awakened.
